CENTRE COUNTY CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION JULY 25 & 26.

GLORIOUS EASTER DAY.

Beautiful Weather Brings Large Attendance At Churches.

SERMONS APPROPRIATE TO THE DAY

Holy Communion Administered in Many Churches—Fine Musical Programmes Rendered—Many New Members Added to God's People.

REPORTS OF SOME OF THE SERVICES

The glorious Easter day 1900 has come and gone, and it will ever remain in our memory as one of the fairest that ever dawned in Bellefonte. As the day advanced the sun grew warmer and the few clouds visible in the early morn passed away behind the mountain tops. The air was balmy and gentle and it seemed as if everyone in town turned out in their best attire to enjoy the full benefits of this beautiful Easter day.

The full significance of the day however was set forth in the churches. In every one there were services appropriate to the occasion. Sermons on the risen Lord the partaking of the Holy communion; the singing of chants, masses and hymns in praise of him who died for us and who had arisen and ascended to the throne, there to continue to intercede for us. Beautiful flowers adorned the pulpits and added their beauty to the deeply religious scenes. The morning and evening services in the various churches were largely attended. So to were those held by the Sunday Schools where the joyous voices of children joined in the singing of hymns and carols.

The following accounts of the services in some of the churches were kindly furnished us for publication.

PRESBYTERIAN.

The Easter celebration at the Presbyterian church was very impressive indeed. In the morning Dr. William Laurie preached an excellent sermon appropriate to the day and in the evening there was a beautiful song service under the direction of Miss Winifred Newbaker.

The rendition of the musical features showed great care in the selection of music as well as much skill and patience in the work of preparation, reflecting great credit on the organist and leader, as well as upon her willing aides the choir. The program rendered was as follows:

The choir rendered some very choice music at both morning and evening services.

ST. JOHN'S CATHOLIC CHURCH.

The Easter services in St. John's Catholic Church were attended by a large congregation and were highly interesting.

The musical program was well selected and admirably rendered. At the 10:30 o'clock mass, Farmer's mass in B flat was sung, by a well trained choir under direction of Miss Mary Ceader. While the 8 o'clock mass was sung by the children of St John Parochial, school about 75 in number who acquitted themselves nobly and with great honor to the untiring efforts of their skilful instructor, sister Amelia.

IMPORTANT JEWISH HOLIDAY

It is Known as Passover and Began Friday Evening

Pesach, or Passover, one of the most important holidays in the Jewish calendar began at sunset Friday evening. The festival continues for eight days and commemorates the deliverance of the children of Israel from Egyptian bondage and their departure from the land of their slavery under the leadership of Moses. The word Pesach signifies the passing over by the Almighty of the houses of the Israelites when the first born of Egypt were destroyed.

During the period covered by the Passover holiday no leaven is permitted to have place in the Jewish home, and matzoth, or unleavened bread, is used instead of the customary bread. Even the dishes in daily use are replaced by the observant Jewish housewife by special dishes used only during this period. The viands used contain permissible ingredients, and the ingenuity of the Jewish cuisine has developed certain Passover delicacies, which assist in making the festival one of joy to the young.

BOROUGH COUNCIL MEETS

LOCK-UP NOW IN GOOD CONDITION

No Excuse Now For Police Allowing Drunks to Run at Large On Our Streets—Miss Barnhart Sues Borough for $3,000 Damages.

RESERVOIR IN GOOD CONDITION

The regular semi-monthly session of council was held Monday evening at 7:30 with President Gerberich in the chair and the following members present, Walkey, Wetzel, Garrity and Knisely. There was just enough present to make a quorum, none of the members from the North ward were in attendance.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by clerk H. B. Pontius and after a few corrections they stood approved.

Richard McCafferty who owns a property on Logan street asked council to exonerate him from back tax as he had been ill and unable to get work.

Street committee reported opening ditches and cleaning South Spring from Pruner residence to Quaker cemetery. Also cleaned Pine, Willowbank, Penn, Lamb, Bishop and High streets.

Water committee reported through Supt. Rine that tested the reservoir and found that it was in good condition, no leaks could be found. Steam pump running constantly 24 hours and everything in good order.

The fire and police committee reported that the lock-up had been moved repaired and was in good condition. There is no excuse now for the police not running in the drunks. There was only one policeman on duty Saturday evening and the fire and police committee though this was not enough. They also recommended the appointment of Joshua Folk and William Garis as substitute policemen for the ensuing year.

Several nuisances were reported to council. Councilman Garrity was in favor of the appointment of a health officer. He claimed that for the $100.00 a year now given the board of health he could secure a secretary for $25 and a health officer for $75.

The case of Miss Fannie Barnhart against Bellefonte boro for damages sustained through falling on Curtin street is to come to trial on the week beginning April 30th. This accident happened in November 1898. J. C. Meyer is attorney for the prosecutrix. Solicitor Chambers asked council to authorize boro engineer Wetzel to make a draft of the scene of the accident. It was so ordered Miss Barnhart demands $3,000 damages.

The Request of Edward Swiler that the water be laid to his residence on West Beaver street was granted.

The request of Richard McCafferty was referred to the finance committee for investigation and report at next meeting.

Mr. Knisely reported the bad condition of St Paul street and asked the authority of council to have street committee repair same. It is in a very filthy condition.

Mr. Knisely also asked council to authorize the street committee to rebuild the foot bridge over Spring creek near P. R. R. round house. It was so ordered. The street committee was authorized to let the job at contract and they are now prepared to receive bids for the erection of the bridge.

A GLANCE BACKWARD.

Old Facts of Interest that Many Yet Living Can Recall.

The Centre Reporter of last week recalls the following interesting facts of interest.

The first meeting to get a railroad through Penns valley, was held at Aaronsburg about 45 years ago. The Bellefonte band was engaged for this first meeting, and was present.

The first musical convention held in this county was back some 36 years ago, at Centre Hall under the instruction of Prof. Cook, of Boston, aided by Jacob G. Meyer, and other musical talent in the county. The convention was held in the Reformed church, the only one in town at that time, The convention was largely attended and a success in every respect.

The first steam engine made in this county was by machinist Landis, of Bellefonte, at his shops in that town. It was built for J. G. Kurtz, publisher of the Bellefonte "Central Press," to run the presses in his office, and the engine proved an entire success. Years thereafter this engine was purchased by William Condo, cabinet maker at Aaronsburg, to run lathe and other machinery in his shops. The engine is still doing service.

The first wagon with spoke wheels, brought into Penns valley, was owned by Samuel Huston, of near this place, about 85 years ago, before the 'pike or any other road entered our valley. It was transported from Lewistown, in parts, on mule back, over the Seven Mountains indian paths. Being a great improvement upon the clumsy clank wheel wagons of the day, it was a great curiosity to the "natives." many came miles to see it, calling it the "stick wagon" on account of the spokes in the wheels. Fifteen years ago this "stick wagon" stood in front of Harpster's smith shop, opposite the Reporter office, for repairs. It was a heavy, 4-horse wagon, built for durability and of honest material.

As to licenses, they have fallen off from former day. Woodward had a licensed house, now it has none; Aaronsburg had one, now none: Madisonburg had one, now none; Penn Hall had one, now none, Spring Mills had two, now one; Centre Hill had one, now none; Boalsburg and Pleasant Gap each had one, now none; Bellefonte had over a dozen, now less than half; Philipsburg, cut down one half.

Centre Hall Having Trouble.

Last week legal papers were served on the president of the Centre Hall town council and Burgess Riter on the suit to be instigated by Anna and Lizzie Bible against the boro of Centre Hall for payment of the annual water rent on their lease. The boro council about three years ago leased the water on the Bible tract east of Centre Hall. The lease called for the payment of $50 annually for five years, and $75 per year thereafter. The council accepted the lease and it was recorded on the county's docket. Two payments were made the Bible girls until last year when it was refused, upon what grounds cannot be learned, but the council upon the advice of their counsel C. M. Bower, wish to kick over the contract. The Bible girls have employed Harry Keller and Reeder and Quigley to force the boro to pay according to contract.

Heroic Mrs. Garman.

Mrs. John Garman, living near Hunters Park, did a heroic deed lately saving her children and house from fire, at the risk of her life. The little home took fire during the absence of her husband and while she labored to get her five little children safely out of the home and having succeeded, she entered again and grabbed a two gallon tin can of oil which was on fire near the door, and when she got it out the soddering of the screw top on the can had melted dropping the cap into the can. Her bravery prevented a certain explosion which would have doomed the home, but it caused her severe burns about her hands and arms. Her cries drew the assistance of neighbors, by whose efforts the fire was put out. A lot of cured meat and some household articles were burned. The loss, $21, was promptly paid by the Centre Hall Company.

A Child's Terrible Death.

Paul Gross, the 3 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gross, of Centre Hall, died a horrible death Monday. On Saturday Mrs. Gross was cleaning her house, and had a bucket of boiling water on the floor. In an unguarded movement the child fell backwards into the bucket, receiving terrible burns on the head, face and body. In the greatest agony he lingered until Monday morning when he passed away.

—The frame school house at Eagleville was destroyed by fire between 1 and 2 o'clock Monday morning It is believed that the building was set on fire.

CAPITOL CHAT.

Our Weekly Letter From Our Washington Correspondent.

ROOSEVELT FOR VICE PRESIDENT

The New Governor of Porto Rico Has An Excellent Record—Six New Brigadier Generals to be Appointed in the Regular Army.

UNCLE SAM BUY'S THE HOLLAND.

It Hon. Charles H. Allen, the first civil governor of Porto Rico, makes as good a record on that island as he has made as assistant secretary of the Navy a position he has held since it was given up by Col. Roosevelt at the opening of the war with Spain, the Porto Ricans will have cause to thank President McKinley for his appointment. The civil rule of Porto Rico will begin May 1, and the new tariff will go into effect at the same time. No arrangements have yet been made for withdrawing the few troops that are in Porto Rico, and it is thought that they will be allowed to remain for awhile, although they will have nothing to do with governing the island, after the civil government takes charge.

Secretary Root has recommended to Congress that provision be made in the Army Appropriation bill for six additional Brigadier Generals in the regular army, in order that President McKinley may reward deserving officers for meritorious service.

Senator Chandler thinks Gov. Roosevelt is the man to be nominated for Vice President on the republican ticket. Speaking about it he said: "I am for Roosevelt, and I do not recognize his right to say that he will not accept the Vice Presidential nomination, if the National Convention should name him. Neither do I recognize the right of President McKinley or Senator Hanna to act for the party in deciding upon the Vice Presidency in advance of the Convention. The delegates will name the Vice Presidential nominee. Their judgment must determine, and any man who is named will accept. The office has never been refused, and if Gov. Roosevelt is named by the Convention, he will accept."

Senator Fairbanks knows the politics of Indiana as few men do, and how much he thinks of the alleged republican revolt in that state, which is so big in the columns of the anti-republican press and so hard to find by those on the ground, may be judged by his having said of the political outlook: "The administration stands in higher favor today than ever before, and will undoubtedly be sustained by the people, who are not prepared to check, interrupt, or reverse the present prosperous condition of affairs. It is not possible that the people will repeat the mistake of 1892. The republican party has redeemed the principal pledges made in 1896, and has brought prosperity to all classes of our people. We are quite ready to meet our opponents in the campaign." Of the Porto Rico tariff, now a law, the alleged cause of the alleged republican revolt, Senator Fairbanks said: "It is based upon proper principles and will justify itself. My information shows that a very strong current in its favor is setting in, and as it becomes better understood the criticism will decrease."

One of the immediate effects of the Clark investigation, which caused the Senate Committee on elections to unanimously report that Clark, of Montana, was not entitled to the seat in the Senate, which he spent something like a quarter of a million dollars to get, was the adoption by the House, with only fifteen adverse votes, of a resolution proposing a constitutional amendment for the election of U. S. Senators, by direct vote of the people.

Spain's attempt to retain three islands on the outskirts of the Philippine group, was a failure. The claim was made on the ground that these islands were outside of the geographical bounds named in the Paris treaty. This government has notified Spain that its claim would not be recognized for the simple reason that the demand of this government, when the Paris treaty was being negotiated was for the entire territory of Spain in the Philippine and Sulu Archipelagoes, and that demand was agreed to by the Spanish Commissioners. The statement of boundaries was made merely to set forth in definite form a description of the territory ceded by Spain. The three islands are not important, but this government is determined that no flag other than Old Glory should fly over any of those islands.

The Navy Department has made a contract for the purchase of the submarine torpedo boat Holland, which has been giving some wonderful exhibitions on the Potomac river, and for such other boats of the same type as may be desired in the future. $150,000 is to be paid for the Holland.

The Bryanites are growing more uneasy over Dewey's candidacy. Perry Belmont's appearance in Washington as one of the financial backers of the Dewey boom, and the report that Boss Croker, who is soon coming home, had made a deal with ex-Senator Hill by which it is hoped to send the New York delegates uninstructed to the Kansas City convention, has caused them to fear that Dewey may be able to knock Bryan out of the nomination, although they still profess to be absolutely certain that Bryan will head that ticket. Their uneasiness is added to by reports of John McLean's success in undermining Bryan sentiment in Ohio. Admiral Dewey's statement of his position on public questions, is due this week, but it will not change the situation in the least.

THE EASTER BALL.

Undines Drew a Big Crowd at Their Post—Lenten Festivity.

The annual Easter Masquerade ball of the Undine Fire Company was held in the armory Monday evening and everything passed off very successfully. The attendance was unusually large and everyone enjoyed themselves immensely.

About 8:30 there was a parade of the band and company from the engine house to the armory. At nine o'clock the grand march took place led by Joseph Mc Mahon and Miss Nora Solt. Many of the costumes worn by the men were extremely comical while those worn by the ladies were very handsome and attractive

Mr, Charles Hazel and Miss Stella Shope carried of the honors as the best costumed couple in the grand march. The ladies prize was a silk umbrella and the gentlemen's prize a dressing case. The judges were Messrs. John Trafford, John Laurie and George Knisely.

The committee of arrangements to whom all honor is due for the big success of the affair was composed of the following named gentlemen. Charles Hazel, Joseph McMahon, William Cunningham, George Doll, Fred Beezer, John Morgan and Arthur Miller.

DEW(EY) DROPS.

Remembering admiral Dewey's brave dash into Manila Bay, the people will forgive his farcical dash into the political arena.

In Manila Bay Dewey risked his life; in matrimony his peace of mind, and in politics his good name. If he lacks judgment he has nerve to spare.

This is a free country, and any man has a right to become a machineless candidates for President; but machineless candidates usually find themselves voteless on election day.

"There is nothing new under the sun." Sailors, without regard to rank, have always been the most gullible of men.

HUMMEL'S EXECUTION.

Will Drop Through the Trap Tuesday June 5.

William Hummel, the quadruple murderer, was informed at Williamsport Thursday that Governor Stone had fixed June 5 as the date for his execution. He almost broke down, and for the first time since his arrest for the terrible crime he showed emotion. As he realized that he had less than two months to live, tears came into his eyes, the first any one has seen him shed; his limbs shook as if with ague, and in a voice he said, "I guess it's all up with me now—that's the way it looks." He soon recovered his composure however, and lighting a cigar began pacing to and fro in his cell. Hummel requested that no visitors be allowed to see him.

HURLED TO THEIR DEATH

Fatal Wreck On The P. R. R. Near Snow Shoe Thursday,

THREE KILLED AND ONE INJURED

Train Jumped the Track and Allen Beemer, of Tyrone Harry and Cal Temple, of Snow Shoe Lose Their Lives—The Engineer Badly Hurt.

VICTIMS SCALDED TO DEATH

One of the worst wrecks that has occurred on the Snow Shoe branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad for some time took place last Thursday between the old Grauer mines and Snow Shoe. The old saying that "we are here today and gone tomorrow' never had a better illustration than in the case of the three unfortunate railroad men, whose souls were so suddenly sent crashing into eternity. The particulars of the terrible accident as near as we could learn them are as follows: The accident happened on Grauer's branch near Clarence, Centre County about 8 o'clock in the morning.

A freight engine and crew had just taken a load of empty cars to Grauer's old mines and were on their way back to Snow Shoe a distance of two miles. At a place called Sugar Camp flats, the engine jumped the track, ran a distance of fifty feet and then went over a six foot embankment into a swamp. In the cab at the time were the engineer, Al Rowan, the fireman, Harry Temple and two brakemen, Cal Temple and Allen Beemer. The engine lay on its left side and sank deep in the mud. The engineer was able to crawl out through the window of his cab and sustained only slight injuries but the unfortunate fireman and two brakemen were buried under the engine and were literally scalded to death. They did not get the remains of the fireman out until noon. The only one who escaped injury was a brakeman named Lucas who was at the time back turning a switch. The cause of the accident is not very clear, although some say that they were running to fast, while others think that the rails spread.

The place where the accident happened is within sight of the Beech Creek station at Clarence and the whole thing was witnessed by a crowd of passengers who were waiting there to take a train.

A wrecking crew was at once sent out from Snow Shoe and as soon as possible the remains of the three men, and the engineer were taken to Snow Shoe. Both the Temple's reside at Snow Shoe as does also the engineer, while Beemer's home is in Tyrone.

Harry Temple is twenty-three years old, unmarried and a son of the late William Temple for many years an engineer on the Snow Shoe road,

Calvin Temple is a cousin of Harry Temple and is about 28 years old and leaves a wife and child.

Beemer was a single man and resided with his parents at Dix near Tyrone.

—It is officially stated that thirty officers and men in the army of the Philippines have committed suicide, and that more than 400 men of that army are in insane asylums. The official reports further show that upward 1400 Filipinos have been killed in the last three months by the unerring rifles of our soldiers on the Island of Luzon.

Alleged Victim of Christian Science.

New York, April 14.—There will be a coroner's investigations into the death of Dean J. Osgood, a wealthy importer who died Thursday night without medical attendance, although in the most advanced stages of Bright's disease. In place of regular licensed physicians he was surrounded by Christian Scientists. The death certificate handed in at the health department was refused. It bore the signature of Dr. Baker, of this city, but it was indefinite in its most important detail.

Indiana Whitecappers Indicted.

Danville, Ind., April 14.—The grand jury has returned indictments against Elwood Walker, Silas Walker, George Alexander, Sam Sauteney, William Terry, Lee Bolton, Benson Eggers, Harry Swank, Fred Staley and John Reeder, as participants in the whitecapping affair on the night of March 5, when Ed and Otis Hughes were flogged with blacksnake whips. All except Elwood Walker, Alexander and Staley are under $300 bonds. The cases are set for the May term of court. It is understood that one of the party has turned state's evidence.

EDITORIAL.

KENTUCKY continues to hold its place as the headquarters for "government without the consent of the governed."

WHEN it comes to a question of expansion vs. contraction it will not take the American voters long to make up their minds.

THE Pennsylvania Democrats will go to Kansas City solid for Mr. Bryan. Later on Pennsylvania will go into the electoral college solid for President McKinley.

THE burning of the magnificent convention hall at Kansas City was a public misfortune. Nobody wished such ill-luck to the party that makes a specialty of calamity.

LINCOLN, the home of Colonel Bryan, elected the Republican municipal ticket the other day by the largest majority it has returned in years. The colonel has a good-sized bunch of enemy's country right at home.

IN 1892 the people voted for a change. In the four subsequent years they found themselves without a cent of change. This year they are content with the change they have in their pockets and won't throw away the substance for the shadow again, even to please the Democratic party of pessimism

THE Hon. Charles A. Schieren, former mayor of Brooklyn, has returned from a trip throughout the West and declares that the business men of the country, without regard to former political beliefs, are content to let good enough alone. Mr. Schieren voted for Mr. Cleveland on one occasion and is looked upon as one of the leading German-American citizens of New York.

TO MANILA BY WIRE.

To pay practically $25 for a brief ten-word message to the Philippines may seem extravagant, but when one reflects that it travels three-fifths of the distance around the globe in completing the journey, passing under the direction of half a dozen different companies, the cost seems far from exorbitant.

The ordinary course of such a message would be from New York to Cape Breton, Nova Scotia, thence to Heart's Cantent, Newfoundland, where it dives under the Atlantic, to reappear on the coast of Ireland. From here it is forwarded to London, which is the great centre and clearing house for the cable business of the whole world. From London the message will be forwarded either across the English Channel and overland to Marseilles, or by the Eastern Telegraph Company's line around the Spanish peninsula, stopping at Lisbon. Through the Mediterranean the route leads to Alexandria, across Egypt by land, down the Red Sea to Aden, through the Arabian Sea to Bombay, over India by land, across the Bay of Bengal to Singapore, along the coast of Hongkong, and across the China Sea to Manila. Notwithstanding the many lands and many hands through which it passes the message is forwarded with reasonable promptness, with perfect secrecy and all the way in English.

THE PUERTO RICAN BILL.

The Puerto Rican tariff bill is a law, despite every obstacle that the free trade Democracy could throw in its way. Could they have compelled the enactment of a measure establishing immediate and absolute free trade with Puerto Rico they would have had opportunity to assert that the precedent thus established must be applied to the Philippines, to Hawaii, and to any other non-contiguous territory which might subsequently come into similar relations with the United States, and that by the act of the Republican party the cheap labor of the Orient and the tropics was thus to be brought into direct competition with the workingmen and agriculturists of the United States. That was the political opportunity for which the Democrats were fighting, but they failed to accomplish it.

The bill as it stands proposes to temporarily collect on goods passing from Puerto Rico into the United States and from the United States into Puerto Rico 15 per cent. of the regular Dingley tariff and to pay into the empty treasury of the island every dollar so collected, this plan to continue only until the legislature of Puerto Rico shall have provided local taxation sufficient to meet the necessities of the island and in no event to continue beyond March 1, 1902, after which date there is to be absolute free trade between the island and the United States.

One of the objects of a tariff upon Puerto Rico's products imported here is to establish a right to impose such a tariff in later years, should it be found necessary. This will be a precedent in our legislation for our new possessions, the Philippines. The proposed import duty—15 per cent. of the Dingley rates—is merely nominal, within 6 per cent. of free trade. Back of it is an established power and recognized authority to deal with these questions as shall seem wisest and best when we know more about the whole matter, and shall better understand the true situation with which we have to deal.

What Puerto Rico is today we know—what it may become ten or twenty years from now, under the influence of American capital and enterprise, we can only conjecture. Cotton may be grown there, and cotton manufacturing might become a large industry. With cheap island labor, the product of our own Northern and Southern mills could thus be undersold. Would it be right to expose the agricultural and industrial interests of these United States to such competition? If the principle of a tariff be not maintained, it might be difficult, if not impossible, to impose one hereafter, if it should thus become necessary. Then the Republican party would be blamed, and justly so, for its neglect to protect the interests of American citizens on the mainland, and for its lack of forethought.

It may be that the sugar yield there may grow to such an extent as to curtail the available market area for our growing beet industry. The same may be true of tobacco, of vegetables, of oranges, of rice, of hides, of hemp, and other products. It is not claimed that there is danger today. But that there is strong probability of danger to American industries through the establishment of free trade relations with Puerto Rico, as a precedent for our policy in dealing with all our outlying possessions, no one can deny, after having given the subject careful investigation. What applies to Puerto Rico might be held to apply equally to other possessions, and who can say what may develop in that much larger and equally fertile area in the East, with its abundance of cheap labor.

This is what we must guard against. Without a precedent, and the established right to impose a tariff upon any of the products of our island possessions, the United States may in years to come feel the effect of such lack of legislation to a very serious degree.

By the adoption of this legislation, future protection will be possible to American interests in case it be needed against that source, or against the Philippines, or against the Danish West Indies, should we acquire them, or any outlying possessions.

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, and it is best not to fix a precedent that will abolish a right which maintains our national policy. Moreover, the Republican party will not be committed to the policy of free trade as is so earnestly desired by the Democrats.

MORE VICTORIES OVER THE MACHINE

Three Anti-Quay Members Are Nominated in Washington County.

AND FOUR MORE WIN IN LUZERNE.

People of the State Repudiating Bossism In Politics—Figures Which Show the Great Gains Made by Anti-Quay Forces Over the State. Quay Leading Some of the Fights in Person.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Harrisburg, April 17.—The past two weeks have been the most disastrous of the year to the Quay machine. Two important fights have been lost by them by overwhelming majorities, and in one of them Senator Quay himself was the general in command. The total gain last week to the anti-Quay Republican cause is four, and possibly five, members of the legislature, which gives them a substantial lead over the number of anti-machine members and senators which they had in the last legislature.

In Washington county on Saturday last the machine was defeated five to one, losing a congressman and three members of the legislature. Early in the present campaign word was passed along the line that Congressman E. F. Acheson, of Washington county, was to be slaughtered. The only misdemeanor of which Congressman Acheson is guilty was that he preferred to labor in Washington for the interests of his constituents rather than the interests of the machine. Beside this the machine was anxious to control three members of the legislature from Washington county.

State Treasurer-elect James E. Barnett was placed in command of the Quay forces in Washington county. He was given unlimited money, and in the closing days of the campaign was ably assisted by the advice and counsel of Attorney General Elkin in Pittsburg, while Col. M. S. Quay directed affairs from his home in Beaver. The people of Washington county knew Congressman Acheson as a man who never bolted his ticket. They also know Col. Barnett as a man who, whenever it suited his political purpose, would aid a Democrat rather than a Republican.

The primaries came off in Washington county on Saturday last. Congressman Acheson had already received the endorsement of Green county and of that part of Allegheny lying in his district. Ex-Senator Quay in the last two days made a personal canvass and a desperate war to encompass Acheson's defeat. The returns up to yesterday show that the anti-Quay forces routed the Quay-Barnett-Elkin combination, horse, foot and dragoons. In fact the Quay people have not a leg left to stand on. Of the three members of the legislature on the anti-Quay ticket Clark and McLaren are present members who voted for Quay. This year they declared against Quay and against a caucus and with Dr. Anderson made up the anti-Quay ticket.

LUZERNE'S GREAT BATTLE.

Scarcely less brilliant was the great battle won in Luzerne county on last Saturday week, in which four anti-Quay, anti-caucus members of the legislature were nominated out of six in the county. In the other two districts an anti-Quay Republican and a Democrat will be elected.

The fight in Luzerne was conducted in person by Sol. Bacharach, assistant executive clerk in Governor Stone's office at Harrisburg. Governor Stone and the machine officeholders sent every available worker into Luzerne county to aid Bacharach, while thousands of dollars of money were distributed where it would do the most good. In addition to this, ex-Attorney General Henry W. Palmer, with other able lieutenants, helped Bacharach as best they knew how. But the people were against the machine and routed the administration forces as they had never been routed before.

In ex-Governor Hastings' district, Centre county, the machine forces, led by Common Pleas Judge Love, who holds the distinction of being the only judge in Pennsylvania who descends from the bench to indulge in politics, tried a still hunt, but were defeated and exposed by the ex-governor. When the machine found that it was beaten it tried to start a riot in the convention hall, but this fell flat and the anti-machine state delegates went through with a hurrah.

A publication that has attracted attention all over the state appeared in the Philadelphia Press of last week. It was in the shape of an editorial, written by one of the most conservative, best posted and reliable political writers in the country, Col. James H. Lambert. The article appeared before the Washington county primaries, and the gains in that county should be added to bring the computation down to date. The result is a startling exhibition of losses by the machine people, and is as follows:

"Of the nominations for the lower house of the Pennsylvania legislature made at the primaries last Saturday Mr. Quay gets ten and the opposition an equal number. This calculation concedes to Mr. Quay the candidate in Clinton county, who is claimed both ways, and it also concedes the candidate nominated in the certain Democratic district of Luzerne where no Republican will be elected.

"So far 82 members have been nominated in districts which in the last legislature were represented as follows: Quayites, 47; anti-Quay, 15; Democrats, 20.

"In the nominations so far made in districts represented by Republicans in the last legislature Mr. Quay has suffered a loss of 15, which is so much gain to the opposition, so that counting the Democratic districts the same as before the nominations for the next legislature stand as follows: Quayites, 32; anti-Quay, 30; Democrats, 20.

IN DEMOCRATIC DISTRICTS.

"In the 20 districts with Democratic representatives in the last house Quayites have been nominated in 16—largely by default, because it was not worth while to contest for nominations pretty certain to be beaten—and the opposition has made nominations in four. The change in a Democratic district here or there will not relatively change the figures given above.

"Six nominations for state senator have so far been made. In Lancaster, Erie and Westmoreland counties, and in the district composed of Indiana and Jefferson, Quay men have been nominated to succeed the Quay men who represented these districts in the last legislature, though in no instance has the machine dared to nominate the man who served at the last session and submit his record to the judgment of the people. In Allegheny county Senator Magee and Senator Crawford have been renominated. Both of them attended the Quay caucus last year and voted for Quay until near the end of the session, but are now opposed to him.

"We believe the figures here given to be as nearly correct as can be under the circumstances. They are based upon carefully sifted information, and are printed with confidence that they will stand the test which time must subject them to. We are aware that they do not agree with the figures which the organs of Quayism are giving out, but it is the business of these organs to make claims, however false. Claims have always been a campaign resource of the machine. It is our business to ascertain and print the facts.

THE ANTIS ENCOURAGED.

"The above allows the anti-Quayites two nominees in Westmoreland, the same as they had in the last legislature, whereas the complete count has given them only one. To offset this they are said to have nominated a legislative candidate in Forest county and to have perhaps five instead of four of the six nominees from Luzerne, the remaining one being a Quayite, but in a hopelessly Democratic district. This favorable summing up, coupled with the renomination of E. A. Coray, of Luzerne, one of the foremost of the anti-Quayites in the last legislature, the turning down of such Quay leaders of Speaker John R. Farr, of Lackawanna; W. C. Kreps, of Franklin; William H. Andrews and Charles W. Simon, of Allegheny, and E. W. Parshall, of Venango, and the victory of ex-Governor Hastings and his friends in the election of state delegates in Centre county, has made the anti-Quay people here feel confident of winning their fight in the next legislature."

A BAD SHOWING.

The Philadelphia North American flung a bombshell into the machine camp last Friday by publishing statistics showing the time spent during the last six months by each official in Harrisburg in the discharge of his duty. The people pay these officials their salaries, and this is the service they get:

Israel W. Durham, insurance commissioner, salary $15,000; was present just three days during the last six months. He was absent 147 days. The North American correspondent says:

"He has not been inside of his office more than a dozen times since the close of the last legislature, and only three times in the last six months. He spends so little time in Harrisburg that it is doubtful if he would recognize his clerks if he were to meet them in the street. Indeed, he knows so little about the office that it is doubtful if he can tell when it was created, or for what purpose."

Banking Commissioner Powers, salary, $6,000; present 37, absent 113 days. Superintendent of Public Buildings Eyre, $3,000; present 43, absent 107. Secretary of Internal Affairs Latta, $5,200; present 38, absent 112. State Treasurer Beacom, $6,200; present 65, absent 85 days. Attorney General Elkin, salary, 12,000; present 60, absent 90 days. Secretary Greist, $22,500; present 53, absent 97 days. Governor Stone, $10,000; present 97, absent 53 days.

It would seem from this that the state pays men to serve their own and the machine's interests rather than that of the people.

THE CORNELL DAM STRIKE.

Contractors Have Decided to Resume Work Under Military Protection.

Croton Landing, N. Y., April 18.—The strike of the Italian laborers on the new Cornell dam in the Croton valley is still on, but the contractors claim that it will soon be over. Everything points to either a speedy settlement of the difficulties, with many of the strikers going back to work, or else a prolonged session of wearisome and fitful days, if not worse. The killing of Sergeant Douglass has changed the aspect of affairs very much to the disadvantage of the laborers, who are clamoring for an increased scale of wages.

The contractors have decided to put new men to work in the morning. So confident are the contractors that they can successfully do this with military aid and protect Sheriff Molloy, of Westchester, that the latter dismissed over 200 extra deputies last night, leaving his regular assistants, about 40 strong, to help the soldiers.

Victims of a Missouri Tornado.

Lexington, Mo., April 18.—Five people were injured, one fatally, and considerable property was damaged by a tornado that passed just west of Concordia, Lafayette county, Monday evening. The injured: August Krohn, a cripple, will die; two children of Krohn, badly hurt; Henry Meyers, injured on hand and face; John Luetzen, head cut and arm hurt and internal injuries. The first place struck was the residence of Martin Bergman, occupied by Henry Meyer. The house and barn were destroyed. Robert Hendricks' house and half a dozen barns were all destroyed, several head of stock killed and much other damage done to property.

Philadelphia's Baseball Strikers.

Philadelphia, April 18.—Roy Thomas, the centerfielder of the Philadelphia National League club, yesterday signed a Philadelphia contract for the coming season. This leaves only two players unsigned—Delahanty and Lajoie. Delahanty demanded and was granted $2,400 salary and $600 for captaining the team, but wants the club to draw up a contract for $3,000, which it refuses to do. Lajoie refuses to sign because the club management refuses to grant him $3,000 for the season. The two players say they will not play until the management comes to terms with them. Col. Rogers says if they carry out their threat he will suspend them.

Carnegie's Latest Benefaction.

Pittsburg, April 18.—Mr. Andrew Carnegie has promised the trustees of the Carnegie Library and Institute to become responsible for $2,600,000, the amount estimated as necessary for the proposed extension and enlargement of the already fine building at the entrance of Schenley park, this city. When the plans for the enlargement were submitted to Mr. Carnegie last year the estimate of expenditures was $1,750,000. This sum he agreed to give the institute, but later it was thought best to enlarge on the original scheme, and when the study plans were submitted to him in New York last week he willingly assumed the added responsibility.

Murderous Italian's Fifth Victim.

Johnstown, Pa., April 18.—The dead as a result of the unknown Italian's skillful wielding of a stiletto at Windber on Sunday night now number five. Thomas Kipling, the fifth victim, died late yesterday afternoon at his home. Kipling was 24 years of age, and came from Phillipsburg. Buckwaiter and George, the two others who received injuries, are doing well. Only one man has been arrested as yet. He is August Boli, and is not accused of complicity in the crime, but is held as a witness.

Gentlemen—Pe-ru-na is good for catarrh. I have tried it and know it. It relieved me immensely on my trip to Cuba, and I always have a bottle in reserve. Since my return I have not suffered from catarrh, but if I do I shall use Pe-ru-na again. Meantime you might send me another bottle.

SENATE CHAMBER, WASHINGTON, D. C.

Pe-ru-na Drug M'f'g Co., Columbus, O.:

Gentlemen—I have used Pe-ru-na for catarrh of the stomach, and after the use of one bottle I felt very much relieved. I had suffered for months before I heard of Pe-ru-na and at the solicitation of a friend I was persuaded to use it and I feel very grateful. To those who are suffering with catarrh I respectfully recommend Pe-ru-na. Very respectfully yours, W. G. Lienallen.

J. R. Stuart, of Eastland, Texas, says: 'I have purchased one bottle of Pe-ru-na, and it was used by myself and wife as a spring medicine. I consider it the best dollar's worth I ever bought. My wife has used your remedies with gratifying results.

Miss Ella Bough, of Gettysburg, Pa., in a letter written from Washington, D. C., says: "I have used Pe-ru-na and have found it to be a valuable and satisfactory remedy Previous to using it I suffered intensely with catarrh. I have now taken one bottle of your valuable remedy and all symptoms have disappeared. I am strong and healthy and cannot recommend your remedies too highly to all afflicted mankind. Ella Bough.

Miss Ella Bough.

Register United States Treasury.

Hon. Judson W. Lyons, Register United States Treasury, says in speaking of Pe-ru-na: "I find Pe-ru-na to be an excellent remedy for the catarrhal affections of spring and summer, and those who suffer from depression from the heat of the summer will find no remedy equal to Pe-ru-na."

Mayor of Grand Rapids.

Hon. George G. Steketee, ex-Mayor of Grand Rapids, Mich., in a recent letter says:

Pe-ru-na Drug M'f'g Co., Columbus, O.:

Gentlemen—I desire to congratulate you on your well merited success with Pe-ru-na. It is highly spoken of by those who have used it as a remedy for catarrh and liver troubles. As a tonic and invigorator it is of high merit, and it pleases me always to speak well of it as it deserves praise.

Respectfully, George G. Steketee.

Pe-ru-na is an ideal spring remedy. It strengthens, quiets, it restores appetite, helps digestion, and builds up weak nerves. For free book address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

SULTAN'S BAD FAITH

Has Strained Our Diplomatic Relations With Turkey.

MINISTER MAY BE SENT HOME.

The Ruler of the Turkish Empire, Despite Repeated Promises, Neglects to Pay the Indemnity Claims of American Missionaries.

Washington, April 18.—There is no longer any question that the diplomatic relations between the United States and Turkey are in a critical state, growing out of the sultan's bad faith. He promised to pay the indemnity claims of the American missionaries for the destruction of eight buildings of the Euphrates college at Harpoot and several buildings belonging to the American missionaries at Marash during the Armenian massacres of 1895. Mr. Straus, the United States minister to Turkey, is at present here on leave of absence. As has already been announced, he presented his resignation, but the president, regarding the services of Mr. Straus as indespensible, indefinitely exteaded his leave, subject to the call of the secretary of state, whenever circumstances may necessitate his return.

Diplomacy appears to have exhausted itself at Constantinople, the sultan having promised to pay the indemnity claims, amounting to some $90,000, which promise was again renewed prior to Mr. Straus' departure, and although 16 months have elapsed since the promise was first made, that promise still remains unfulfilled. What action the government will now take to enforce the sultan's promise is not definitely known, but as the situation is critical it may result in Secretary Hay sending the Turkish minister at Washington his passports.

The question involved between the two countries is no longer one resting upon disputed points of international law, but upon the sultan's broken faith. This is not his only promise, he having stated to our minister that he would give his permit for the reconstruction of the American college and school buildings, yet up to the present the official permit, upon one excuse and another, has been withheld.

When Dr. Angell resigned in 1898 the relations between the two countries were critical by reason of the inaction of the Turkish government and its refusal to entertain the indemnity claims. Mr. Straus, by reason of his successful previous mission and his past experience, was sumomned by the president to take up the mission, as best qualified to adjust the pending questions in a manner satisfactory to both countries. Shortly after his arrival at Constantinople in September, 1898, several matters yielded to negotiation. He then addressed himself to the main questions, the compensation for missionary buildings destroyed and for property looted, and the permit for their rebuilding. The Turkish government shortly before the departure of Dr. Angell sent a reply denying all liability for the buildings and property destroyed. A similar reply was sent to the ambassadors of England, France and Italy, having like claims.

Mr. Straus took up the question anew, basing his argument upon the well recognized principles of international law, with the result that at an audience with the sultan on Dec. 8, 1898, the sultan promised to pay the claims. He also stated that he had given permission for the reconstruction of the destroyed buildings. Neither of these promises has been kept.

President Powell's Damage Suit.

Atlanta, April 18.—W. V. Powell, president of the Order of Railway Telegraphers, who is directing the strike of telegraphers on the Southern railway, filed here yesterday a suit for $50,000 damages against the Southern on account of a publication in a local paper. Mr. Powell claims the article holds him up to public hatred, contempt and ridicule. It contains an interview with J. S. B. Thompson, assistant general superintendent, and a telegram from General Superintendent J. R. Barrett, of the Southern road. Petitioner declares the publications were well known by defendant to be false.

Pittsburg's Mine Strike Settled.

Pittsburg, April 18.—Resolutions calling for immediate resumption of work by all of the striking coal miners in the Pittsburg district were passed last evening by a unanimous vote of the delegates to the convention, which has been in session here several days endeavoring to correct the troubles which brought about the strike. All the differences have been amicably arranged except the outside day wage scale. This feature is left for settlement to a committee. It is believed the mines will all be in operation tomorrow.

Highwaymanry in St. Louis.

St. Louis, April 18.—Edgar Atkins, coach of Smith Academy football and baseball teams, was shot after a desperate struggle with a negro highwayman at an early hour in the fashionable west end of town. Mr. Atkins had just left a street car, and when ordered to throw up his hands he grasped the hand that held the weapon and in the struggle that followed the revolver was discharged, the bullet piercing the left leg below the groin. As Mr. Atkins fell the negro abstracted a roll of bills containing $70 from his vest pocket and fled. The wound is not considered serious. Mr. Atkins was prominent in Yale athletics.

Returned With Reason Dethroned.

New Orleans, April 18.—Dispatches from Port Eads gave an account of the drowning from the steamer Jarl, on which he was returning to this country, of L. H. Hyer, a United States engineer, recently engaged in the preliminary survey of the route of the Nicaraguan canal. It developed yesterday when the Jarl reached this city that Mr. Hyer had not been drowned. When the hatches were opened and sailors proceeded into the hold of the ship they found Hyer concealed behind a lot of freight. His mind is gone. The unfortunate man was brought on deck and turned over to the police.

Dewey Autograph Album of Notables

Washington, April 13.—A beautiful and unique autograph album was presented to Admiral Dewey yesterday. The book is a large leather bound volume with an illuminated, illustrated title page setting forth in detail the service he rendered to his country by the destruction of the Spanish fleet, and the first sheet of autographs contains the original signature of President McKinley and the members of his cabinet. Then follow the autographs of several hundred of the most distinguished and influential men in New York city.

Drunk and Asleep on the Track.

Philadelphia, April 18.—A man and woman supposed to be Jones McGarrity, of Hartford, and Mary Taylor, of this city, were killed Monday night on the Newtown Square branch of the Philadelphia and Baltimore Central railroad, near Grassland, Delaware county. A quart bottle, containing whisky, was found near the bodies, and it is believed that the couple had imbibed from it and fell asleep on the track. The bodies were found yesterday.

New York's Republican Delegates.

New York, April 18.—The Republican convention for the election of delegates-at-large to the national convention at Philadelphia named two United States senators, a governor and the second in command of the Republican state organization as the choice for delegates-at-large. The men signally honored are Senators Platt and Depew, Governor Roosevelt and State Committee Chairman B. B. Odell as delegates-at-large and Edward H. Butler of Buffalo and F. A. Mitchell of Rochester, both newspaper proprietors, as electors-at-large.

Governor Allen Confirmed.

Washington, April 18.—The senate yesterday confirmed the following nominations: Charles H. Allen, of Massachusetts, to be governor of Puerto Rico; I. J. McCottrie, to be collector of customs for the district of Georgetown, S. C.; John B. Robinson, to be marshal for the eastern district of Pennsylvania. The president will probably name Frank W. Hackett, of Portsmouth, N. H., as assistant secretary of the navy.

THE MURDER OF GOEBEL

Ten Persons Indicted by the Franklin County Grand Jury.

FIVE NAMED AS PRINCIPALS.

Among Those Indicted as Accessories Are State Secretary Powers and Ex-State Secretary Finley—H. E. Youtsey Named as First Principal

Frankfort, Ky., April 18.—The Franklin county grand jury yesterday afternoon returned indictments against ten persons, charging them with complicity in the murder of William Goebel. The principals named are Henry E. Youtsey, James Howard, Berry Howard, Harland Whittaker and "Tallow Dick" Combs (colored). Those indicted as accessories before the fact are Secretary of State Caleb Powers, Captain John T. Powers, ex-Secretary of State Charles Finley, W. H. Coulton and F. Wharton Golden. In the indictment relating to the alleged accessories three other men are indirectly referred to as accessories, though no indictments were reported against them. They are Governor W. S. Taylor, Green Golden and Captain John Davis.

Henry E. Youtsey, who is mentioned as the first principal, was a clerk in the office of State Auditor Sweeney. He formerly lived at Newport. Youtsey was first named in the case by Wharton Golden, the star witness for the prosecution at the examining trial of Caleb Powers. Jim and Berry Howard are cousins and mountaineers of note in connection with the old Howard feud. They were with the men alleged to have been brought here by the Powers brothers, Finley and others on the "excursion of mountaineers."

Harlan Whittaker lived in Butler, Governor Taylor's home county, and is alleged to have been in the room in the executive building from which the shot was fired.

Dick Combs, the negro, lived at Beattyville, and also came here with the mountain men.

Caleb Powers is the Republican contestee for secretary of state, and John L. Powers, another of the defendants named as an accessory, is his brother. Charles Finley was secretary of state under Republican Governor W. O. Bradley. He is now in Indianapolis, having gone there just before the warrant charging him with complicity was sworn out six weeks ago. W. H. Culton was a clerk in the office of Auditor Sweeney. Wharton Golden was a member of the Taylor State Guard, and claimed to turn state's evidence on the stand in the examining trial of Caleb Powers, when he recited what he claimed to be the inside facts relating to the alleged conspiracy to murder Goebel and enough Democratic members of the legislature to give the Republicans a majority. It is stated that the commonwealth will at once nolle the indictment against Golden in consideration of his testimony.

The McGovern Fight.

Chicago, April 18.—Tommy White, of Chicago, went six fast rounds with Terry McGovern, of Brooklyn, last night, finished strong and had the best of the last round. The fight was at 130 pounds, both men being below that, although the exact weights were not given out. McGovern did not, from appearances, have more than two or three pounds the worst of the weights. By an agreement of the principals no decision was to be rendered if both men were on their feet at the end of the sixth round. McGovern would probably have received the decision if one had been rendered, as he was on the aggressive from start to finish.

To Settle a Boundary Dispute.

Richmond, April 18.—The final preliminary steps were taken yesterday at Washington by which the disputed boundary line between the states of Tennessee and Virginia will be referred to a commission for final determination. The representatives of both sides agreed as to the facts, and the supreme court was asked to make a decree for the appointment of the commission.

Blown to Bits by Dynamite.

Frederick, Md., April 18.—The 11-year-old son of Edward Fogel was instantly killed yesterday by the alleged spontaneous explosion of dynamite. The father of the boy, with a number of other workmen, were blasting on the farm of David P. Zimmerman, near this city. The youngster was seen to approach the group of workmen, but no attention was paid to him until a terrific explosion startled them and they saw fragments of his body flying in various directions. It is not known whether he had any matches about his person and caused the explosion by ignition.

Acquitted of a Murder Charge.

Scranton, Pa., April 18.—William Bowman was yesterday acquitted before Judge Archbald of the murder of his neighbor, John Kneisem, whom he stabbed eight times in the neck and shoulder during a drunken fight Jan. 6 last, and who died six weeks later after having been pronounced well and permitted by his attending physician to go about as much as he chose. Coroner Roberts' testimony saved Bowman. He swore positively that the result of the autopsy clearly established that Kneisem had died of constriction of the bowels, induced by excessive drinking of water.

Declares Wright Was Murdered.

Chicago, April 18.—Chief of Detectives Colleran, Lieut. Perry and the detective who is working on the case of Rufus Wright, the millionaire bicycle manufacturer, who died Sunday from the effects of a bullet wound received while in the apartments of Mrs. Louise Lottridge, at the Leland hotel, announced yesterday that evidence collected by them led to the theory that the shot was fired by the woman during a quarrel over the millionaire's refusal to give her a large sum of money.

Chancellor McGill to Resign.

Jersey City, April 18.—It was announced yesterday that the condition of Chancellor Alexander T. McGill had greatly improved within two or three days. But with this came the further announcement that Mr. McGill had decided to send his resignation to Governor Voorhees. The chancellor could not be seen, but his brother, Dr. John D. McGill, practically confirmed the report.

Sugar Refining Resumed.

New York, April 18.—The American Sugar Refining company's refineries in Brooklyn reopened yesterday. Five hundred men, about 15 per cent of whom are expert sugar makers, machinists and teamsters, were put to work, and 300 laborers were taken on last night. The refineries shut down six weeks ago. It is understood that full time will now be resumed. It is said that there are 150,000 barrels of sugar ready for distribution in greater New York.

A LITTLE WORLD OF MATRIMONY.

BY HOWARD FIELDING.

Copyright, 1899, by C. W. Hooke.

When Mr. Frost came to the portal of the Ann street bank building wherein his offices were located, he observed that some workmen were repairing the roof of the vestibule. It is a unique structure, unlike anything else in New York. Mr. Frost, being an architect, was peculiarly sensible of its absurdity. It looked to him as if the builders had tried to carry a classic marble tomb into the modern structure and had got stuck with it half way through the front door.

Considering the weight of the slabs which formed the main part of the vestibule's roof, Mr. Frost was of the opinion that they ought not to be disturbed while people were passing in and out beneath. This opinion, however, was entirely professional. Personally he did not care whether the laborers did or did not drop 500 pounds of marble on his head, whence we conclude that Mr. Frost was not happy.

Really he had stood it about as long as he could. The trouble did not seem to be that he had lost the girl, but that he could not stop thinking about her. When their engagement was broken, he was able to say to himself that the act was wise; that she would be happier as the wife of somebody else and he as the husband of nobody at all. Of course Miss Elton was a very attractive girl, with a face that simply wouldn't get out of a fellow's mind and a lot of the prettiest ways— Confound it! Why had he ever met her? Why couldn't he stop worrying and get back to work? Must he resort to travel in far lands, as lovers in novels usually do?

On this particular day the desire could be turned by force properly applied. His own position prevented him from putting much power into the effort, for in pushing upon the partition ahead of him he had nothing to brace against except the partition behind him, and such an attempt was like the old joke about the man who tried to lift himself by pulling on his boot straps.

Meanwhile the situation was inexpressibly embarrassing. Dozens of men who knew Mr. Frost and Miss Elton and the main facts of their unfortunate love story were among the bank's customers or held offices in the building. A veritable procession of them might be expected at that hour in the forenoon. Fancy being shut up in a little glass walled cell with the girl to whom you used to be engaged and thus exposed to public view and the ridicule of your friends! It was not to be borne.

In the few seconds that were required for the situation to reveal itself to Frost a crowd had collected. It was still possible to pass in and out of the building, for on each side of the "revolver" there was an ordinary door, but most people seemed to prefer to halt and view the spectacle. Frost saw the uniformed watchman of the building, a gigantic and impressive creature, push his way through the throng within and apply his strength to the door. It did not move the sixteenth part of an inch. Frost shouted to him to get help from the workmen who were climbing down from the vestibule's roof, and the watchman replied reassuringly that it would be all right in half a minute.

Evidently relief must come from without. It remained for those within to summon up their patience. Frost was a young man of remarkable self control.

"This must be very annoying to you," he said, "but of course it can't last long. I think we should make the best of it, and that suggests the idea that you would better sit down."

He turned his dress suit case over on end and placed it so that she could have the end wall of the cell for a back.

"Thank you," said she. "I shall not be so conspicuous if I sit down. But I'm afraid the door will begin to turn."

"And I'm afraid that it won't," he rejoined, laughing gently. "At any rate it will hit me first, and I will give you warning. Ah, here comes Paulsen!"

Paulsen was the chief machinist employed in the building. He went right to work as if he thought that two minutes' time would be enough to settle the affair. But the minutes passed, and the door was immovable.

In the segment opposite the one in which Mr. Frost and Miss Elton were immured an elderly gentleman of rather elegant appearance had been caught. His position was in all respects similar to theirs. He was taking matters very coolly, leaning against one of the partitions and smoking a cigar.

"Our neighbor is bearing it well," said Frost, with the amiable intention of diverting his companion's thoughts.

"He has the advantage of being alone," replied Miss Elton.

She had not meant to say anything disagreeable. Naturally she compared the man in the one compartment with the man in the other. But the remark was susceptible of being taken another way. It cut Frost's heart right in two.

"You are ungrateful to Providence," said he gently. "Think of the extreme brevity of our present association and of the much longer one that you have escaped."

Forgetting that she had been the original aggressor, Miss Elton proceeded to get even with Frost for reverting to an unpleasant topic.

"As you imply," said she, "this experience is comparable to matrimony. Here we are shut up together in a cage, each longing to get away and yet incapable of doing so."

"And Paulsen, who typifies the divorce court, is so dreadfully slow," rejoined Frost.

"These glass walls," said the girl, continuing the allegory, "are like the publicity of marriage. Married people are forever in the sight of all the world, and each must in effect declare at all times, 'This is the best partner I could get.'"

"As to that," responded Frost, "the remedy is to make a choice of which one can never be ashamed. I did so."

"Upon my word," said she, "you said nothing so polite as that in the old days!"

"I thought you would like something of the kind," he replied, "and I tried very hard. People who are forced to be together should strive to be agreeable. That is, I fancy, the great and open secret of happiness in marriage."

"No one is so disagreeable," said she, "as the man who strains his naturally unamiable nature in the effort to be so and then immediately demands credit for it. That, I should suppose, would be the heaviest of a wife's burdens. Her husband is a bear—a polar bear, fierce and cold. Once in awhile he pulls in his claws and looks pleasant for about two minutes, and for the next hour, or week perhaps, he is always saying how hard he tried to please his wife."

"Would you like me to hurry Paulsen?" he asked.

"He represents the divorce court, doesn't he?" said she. "Yes; by all means appeal to him. There is an evident case here—of incompatibility of temper."

Frost called to Paulsen, and the machinist came close to the prison wall.

"The trouble is not with the door," he said; "it is on top. The whole thing is cramped."

The roof of the vestibule had settled, perhaps as the result of some mismanagement of the repairs, and one of the supports was pressing down upon the door in such a way as to hold its four flanges immovable. Possibly the jar of the door's striking Frost's heel might have furnished the last pound of power that precipitated the catastrophe, or it might have been fate that timed it so nicely.

"The court," said Frost, "decides that we have not been here long enough to gain a residence. Action on your petition is therefore postponed."

"And meanwhile," she replied, "all our friends know that we are anxious to part and cannot. There's Harry Windom grinning through the glass, and he'll tell everybody. And, oh, there's uncle! Poor fellow, how sorry he will be for me!"

"That our friends should be amused and our near relatives grieved," said Frost, "is the inevitable result of these entanglements. However, let us be consoled. Your uncle will spend large sums to get us out of this."

"It will get into the papers!" she exclaimed. "I see a man writing something in a notebook."

"There'll be an artist here presently," said Frost. "I wonder if they can photograph us through this glass."

They both laughed at the preposterous notion of their pictures being together in the afternoon papers. Their merriment was interrupted by an outburst from the other cell. The third prisoner was making a rumpus. His patience had given out. His cigar was smoked up, and, besides, he had gathered from Paulsen's statement that the situation was not without peril. He was threatening damage suits and personal violence.

Miss Elton caught some words of his which let her know the real cause of the trouble, and it frightened her. Singularly enough, she clasped Frost's hand with an impulsive grasp.

"Is it true," she cried, "that something is wrong with the roof over us?"

"It is," said he, "but there is no real danger. If there were, they would break down the doors and release us."

He did not let her hand get away while he was speaking, and, indeed, she made no effort to withdraw it. Suddenly there were tears in her eyes.

"I am glad you are here!" she cried. "Of course I would not wish you to be in danger, but I should be so frightened if I were alone."

"I think that we have been of some use to each other," he replied. "Even our quarrels have helped to pass away the time. Our friend in the other cage, who typifies the bachelor, began the ordeal more calmly than we did, but he has not held out as well. His interest is selfish, and that is the worst kind of unhappiness."

"Be careful, Jack," she whispered. "You are leading our little allegory to a strange conclusion."

"Let it lead where it will," he replied. "The fact is that all life is an ordeal which two can bear better than one."

She looked serious for a moment and then laughed happily, like a child.

"Tell Paulsen that I don't want to get out," said she. "The petition is withdrawn. You're a good fellow, Jack, and the harder the situation the better fellow you are. It is worth while to go through troubles for the sake of going through them with you."

Half an hour later, when the door decided to move, these two did not take advantage of their freedom. They went up to Grace's home and told her mother that they had made it all up. And while they told the story they were just as close together as in the narrow cell of wood and glass. But they had learned to like it.

"HERE WE ARE SHUT UP TOGETHER IN A CAGE."

overcame him. He wrote a few letters, seized his traveling bag and fled without much idea as to where he was going.

In the lower hall of the building he met Miss Elton. It was what he had long feared, for her uncle was cashier of the bank, and she had to come down to see him often on errands for her mother.

Of course he couldn't look at her. Neither could she look at him. And that is why they both tried to get out first and both came together with a jolt in one of the compartments of the rapidly revolving door.

Frost perceived the catastrophe the tenth of a second too late. He stopped suddenly in the wild hope that he could back out. The door bumped against his heels with tremendous force, and he lurched forward against Miss Elton in a most embarrassing way. Babbling the most abject apologies, he thrust out a hand ahead of Miss Elton and tried to push the door around. It did not move. He threw his weight against the leaf behind him, but it was as immovable as an iron wall.

"Why, what's the matter with the thing?" he exclaimed.

"It's stuck," replied the girl feebly.

That was the truth certainly. Frost could not move it either way. Their segment was completely closed by one of the curved walls between which the door revolved. They were imprisoned in a space just big enough to hold them.

Frost's first idea was that the shock of the door had disarranged its mechanism. He had never taken the trouble to find out just how these contrivances were built, but he knew that the revolving partitions could be folded together handily; so there was good prospect of immediate release.

Indeed it was probable that the door

I hesitate about telling the following incident because I should have considered it unworthy of credence if I had not been an observer of it myself. I don't pretend to explain it. I am not a student of psychology. It simply happened, and I am willing to run the risk of being called a spinner of yarns because I don't think that it can be matched outside of the realm of pure fiction. There is no attempt at composition in my narrative. Events in our lives seldom afford good specimens of composition; the trivial will take the center of the stage to the exclusion of the tragic.

I have given all of the characters fictitious names. In other respects I have set down the things as they occurred.

One cold, stormy evening in the early part of the winter I was on my way to the studio of Fred Blankley, the marine painter. He had invited me and several other men and women to meet a famous French pianist. I was a little late, and when I drew near to the house, which stands in a quiet street, I heard the sound of the piano. I walked up the steps, and a man followed me from the other side of the street. He was about 30, poorly clad and shivering with the cold. There was something of refinement in the cut of his face, but when he spoke his language was strongly tinctured with toughness.

"Say, boss, if you're go'n inside, I wish you'd take me wit' you. It's blamed col' out here, an I kin amuse de gues' from de wold go."

It was a cheeky request, but I knew my host well and felt sure that at least the fellow would receive warmth and some supper; so I took him in. The elevator man looked askance at him, but I explained that he was with me and that it was all right.

"How can you amuse us?"

"Song, dance, tricks, imertations, anyt'ing at all," he said.

I held a hasty conference with Blankley, and he said: "Why, of course. Give the chap a chance to show what he can do. But first I'll have Sam give him something hot. He looks purple with the cold."

A few minutes later the ragged fellow, for whom McCarty will be a good name, walked into the room where the guests, some 20 in number, were seated. He went up to the great pianist, who was sitting on the piano stool, and said: "Soy! I'll have t' ask youse t' gi' me a lift on a coon song. I'll gi' you de air, an I guess you kin t'ump it out all right if you're de same blokie I heerd before I kem in."

Fancy asking a man whose terms at a regular affair are $500 an evening to "t'ump" an air for you! But the big man, with the simplicity of a true artist, smiled and said, "Wis plaisir," and after he had heard the air once he played it with such harmonies as its composer had not been able to give it.

McCarty was not clever; he was a genius. The coon song was sung with such character and tunefulness and the dialect was so perfect that when he had finished every one was asking every one else who this man was. The act of "camaraderie" on the part of—I had almost said the Parisian's name—also served to mellow the whole company, so that they were in just the mood for the remarkable exhibition that followed.

The ragged fellow with the refined face and the unutterably tough accent amused those present for at least three-quarters of an hour with a programme as varied as if it had been interpreted by half a dozen clever people. His imitation of Dixey imitating Irving was followed by his own imitation of Irving, and the latter was the tragedian himself.

"Soy, mister, if youse'll gi' me de drums on de bass notes till I gi' you a sign an den break into any ole march I'll give a imertation of an ole darky in Louisville de day of de parade. Like dis—dum-rum-dum, dum, dum."

P., the eminent pianist, beat the drum on "de bass notes," while McCarty impersonated an old darky who comes to Louisville to spend the day, and, on hearing a band of music approaching, is rejuvenated, and from being a decrepit, rheumatic old man leaning on his cane becomes a jaunty drum major, as he had been in his youth. But no drum major in New York ever twirled his baton with the abandon and precision of this one. It was virtuosity. A big mirror stood directly in front of McCarty, and fragile ornaments were upon every side, but no one felt alarmed for their integrity. He inspired confidence. Those mobile fingers were magnets that would not lose their potency over the heavy cane, and when at last the band passed out of hearing and McCarty dropped into a chair P., the Frenchman, left his stool and shook hands with him, laughing heartily the while, and the audience broke into salvos of applause for both.

In the simulation of a quarrel between a Corkonian and a darky, where the epithets fell like rain and the interruptions were constant and spasmodic, he preserved each dialect in a marvelous manner. His neatness of utterance reminded me of Harry Kernell, but it was strongly individual. Who was this fellow who had the mimetic ability of a Nat Goodwin and a Mansfield combined and yet who seemed to be and undoubtedly was an ignorant outcast?

His imitation of Paderewski was startling. Although he could not play at all, he had devised a plan of movement for his fingers that produced a tuneless, horrible cacophonic form and which compassed the whole keyboard, and the toss of his head and shoulders and the action of his back and arms were to the life.

Among the invited guests who up to this point had not come was Mrs. Melville, the most talented landscape painter on the Pacific coast. Hers had been a romantic story, and doubtless it will be remembered by those interested in artists. Happily married, she was one day shocked almost into insanity by the sudden disappearance of her husband, genial Harry Melville. He was a stockbroker, with no artistic gifts except a somewhat unusual talent for impersonation. He was wrapped up in his wife and her work, and no reason could be imagined for his disappearance. She had bravely kept up her painting, but she was a changed woman. Five years had passed away, and she had come east to spend the winter with her brother.

McCarty was giving an imitation of May Irwin singing "Ah Want Yer, Mah Honey," when the door opened, and Mrs. Melville entered accompanied by her brother.

As soon as her eyes fell on McCarty she uttered a shriek and said, "Harry!"

McCarty looked at her casually, then anxiously. Then he stopped singing and put his hand to his eyes and rubbed them. He seemed struggling to recollect something.

"Harry, don't you know me? It's Grace," said Mrs. Melville, going up to him and taking his hand in hers.

The guests looked amazed, as well they might, for Mrs. Melville was queenly looking and dressed with admirable taste, and the contrast between her and the emaciated tramp was striking.

It was pitiable to watch McCarty now. Tears were streaming down his cheeks, and he muttered, half to himself, "Grace is dead, dead!" But he clutched the hand of this woman who was talking so kindly to him as if he were loath to part with her. Suddenly he sobbed out: "You are Grace! You are my wife! Take me home! I have been out a long time! It was bitter cold, and you were dead!"

* * * * * * * *

It was Harry Melville. Most of his life from the time he left San Francisco until the tones of his wife's voice at that strange, chance meeting recalled him to himself will always remain a sealed book. He had evidently traveled all over the country and had obtained a scanty subsistence by the exercise of that mimicry which his mental trouble had not weakened, but had intensified. It is easy to explain his gradual lapse into a tough manner of speech, and but for my fortunate meeting of him that stormy night he would probably have lived and died as McCarty.

As the weeks went on his memory of his early life strengthened and that of his nomadic life faded. Those who had known him in San Francisco say that he is the same Harry Melville as of old, save for a pedantic precision of speech and a dislike for mimicry.

When I told this to the black bearded French pianist the other day, he whimsically expressed himself as being intensely disappointed at the outcome of the affair. As he said, Mrs. Melville had become accustomed to the loss of her husband, but the world had not so many artists that it could afford to lose one so preternaturally gifted as McCarty.

Mr. and Mrs. Melville gave a little supper at her studio only last month, and she had some very entertaining people there, but never a man among them with a tithe of the talent of "Tough McCarty."

"HE MUTTERED, 'GRACE IS DEAD, DEAD!'"

Rings Always the Same.

Although many jewelers advertise "some thing new in rings," the fact remains that they are but slight variations of the style in vogue at the time Moses piloted the children of Israel out of the bondage of Egypt. Rings are alluded to in the Bible, in the books of Genesis and Exodus. They have been found among the relics of prehistoric races, the stone age, the bronze age and the age of the mound builders. Herodotus mentions that the Babylonians wore them, and from Asia they probably were introduced into Greece.

The rings worn in early times were not purely ornamental, but had their significance as signet rings. A king's messenger delivering a message and exhibiting the king's signet as authority was obeyed implicitly. The Romans had a marriage ring of iron with a jewel of adamant, signifying eternity and constancy. History mentions a magic ring possessed by King Solomon of which the Jews and Mohammedans have abundant traditions. It was by means of this ring as a talisman of wisdom and power that Solomon was enabled to perform those wonderful acts and accomplish those vast enterprises that have made his name so celebrated as the wisest monarch of the earth. The later Romans wore a profusion of rings, and the more effeminate had rings for summer and winter.—Chicago Chronicle.

A Misplaced Amen.

Attorney John A. Ward, one of the popular members of the Philadelphia bar, says The Inquirer, of that city, recalls at times an incident in one of the courts which happened shortly after he had been admitted to practice law, and which he tells with scarcely the shadow of a smile.

It was when court was just opening for the morning session that a boy, sitting by his side, heard the usual prayer made by the crier. The lad seemed surprised, until, as the last words were uttered by the official, Ward, without a thought as to the result, punched the boy in the side with his elbow and told him to say amen. Quick as a flash came the response from the boy in a tone of voice that at first startled lawyers and spectators and disturbed the equilibrium of the presiding judge.

When the instant of astonishment had passed, men and women who were present laughed lightly as all eyes were directed toward the lad and Ward. "I was too confused to do anything," says the latter, "except to look in any direction but at the youth, who seemed to be appealing to me to know why everybody was looking at us. I still say 'amen' myself when prayer requires it, but I have never told any one else to do so since the occurrence in court, and I never will."

Hypnotism.

The subject of hypnotism was rescued from the charlatans, rechristened and subjected to accurate investigation by Dr. James Braid of Manchester as early as 1841. But his results, after attracting momentary attention, fell from view, and, despite desultory efforts, the subject was not again accorded a general hearing from the scientific world until 1878, when Dr. Charcot took it up at the Salpetriere in Paris, followed soon afterward by Dr. Rudolf of Heidenhain of Breslau and a host of other experimenters. The value of the method in the study of mental states was soon apparent.

Most of Braid's experiments were repeated, and in the main his results were confirmed. His explanation of hypnotism, or artificial somnambulism, as a self induced state, independent of any occult or supersensible influence, soon gained general credence. His belief that the initial stages are due to fatigue of nervous centers, usually from excessive stimulation, has not been supplanted, though supplemented by notions growing out of the new knowledge as to subconscious mentality in general and the inhibitory influence of one center over another in the central nervous mechanism.—Harper's Magazine.

IT is shown by unexceptionable statistics furnished by the War Department to Congress that the rate of suicide among our soldiers in the Philippines is about the same that has been in the United States for the past ten years, and that the rate of insanity is even less than that at home. Thus explodes another Democratic campaign lie—and about as cruel and malicious a one as could be devised.

Mining Accidents.

The report of the Bureau of Mining for the past year will show that there were 258 fatalities in the bituminous district of this state, in 1899 and 487 nonfatal accidents Twenty-nine were killed and fourteen hurt by explosions of gas and dust; six were killed and thirty-seven hurt by explosions of powder; 163 were killed and 265 hurt by falls of slate, coal, etc; forty-four were killed and 132 hurt by mine cars and machinery; three were killed and two hurt by falls down shafts; two were kicked by mules; one was killed by boiler explosion, five were killed by electric shocks, seven were killed and forty-four hurt by miscellaneous accidents. The number of wives made widows was 148 and 470 children left fatherless.

The number of employes during the year were 91,444; tons of coal produced, 50,591,585; number of lives per thousand employed, 2.09 per cent; number of tons produced per life lost, 304,749; number of tons produced per employee, 614.

Generally it was supposed that the intelligent American miner was less liable to accident than the more ignorant foreigner, but the figures do not bear out this supposition, as sixty two Americans were killed and 160 injured.

SECRETARY Gage has notified Congress that the revenues of the country for the next fiscal year will be some $70,000,000 in excess of the expenditures, unless some abnormal expenses be incurred. If possible, some action will be taken to reduce taxation, but if this has to be postponed to the next session, the country will at least have the consolation of knowing that a surplus is better than a deficit with an issue of bonds to save the Treasury from disaster.

J. EDWARD LAWRENCE.

Passed Away Thursday at Noon of Typhoid pneumonia.

It is with great regret that we chronicle the death of J. Edward Lawrence a citizen of our town generally respected for his many excellent qualities. His death occurred at exactly noon at his home on West Curtin street, after a two weeks illness with pneumonia. The announcement of his death proved a great shock to the community as strong hope of recovery had been held out.

John Edward Lawrence was born in Richmond, Me., and was 38 years and 8 months old at time of death. His education was attained in the public schools of Richmond and of Gardner, Me., when a young man he located at Lewiston, Me., where he became very successful as an insurance writer for the New England Mutual Company. The severe rigors of this northern clime were to much for his delicate constitution so he sought a more congenial clime and located in Bellefonte in 1896, where he entered the employment of the Union Mutual Insurance Company of Portland, Me. Since coming here he has been very successful and was at time of death general manager for Central Pennsylvania.

He was united in marriage in 1887 to Miss May R. Foss of Lewiston, Me. She survives him with their two children Nettie and John. The remains were taken Friday to Lewiston, Me., where his mother still lives and where the interment will take place. Mrs. Lawrence and his brother-in-law, Prof. Foss, of State College accompanied them.

Funeral services were held at the house at 9 o'clock conducted by Rev. T. Levan Bickle, of the Reformed church, assisted by Rev. E. C. Houck, the Baptist minister at Milesburg. The Bellefonte Lodge of Masons attended the funeral in a body and escorted the remains to the train.

The pall-bearers were J. S. McCarger, George T. Bush, Wilbur F. Reeder, Robert Cole, H. C. Crissman and A. C. Mingle.

Water Baptism.

No one can be religiously benefited by mere controversy on this subject to see which party can outmatch the other in argument. The day is passed for that, or it is hoped nearly so, and never to return. Christians everywhere differ in their belief and practice on the subject, leaving room for "charity," but never for unchristian controversy. Certain it is we have never seen more "charity" manifest among Christians on the mode of water baptism than there is to-day. Circumstances are sometimes such that a preacher of the Gospel should, in a Christian spirit publicly express the reasons he has for his views on the sacred ordinance. The opinion of the writer is that no person will be admitted into Heaven merely because he has been baptised by immersion, that no one will be excluded from Heaven because he was baptised by the sprinkling or otherwise. "God looketh upon the heart" and "is no respector of persons." "The spirit is life because of righteousness." Rom 8 to 10.

Spreads Like Wildfire

When things are "the best" they become "the best selling." Abraham Hare, a leading druggist, of Belleville, O., writes "Electric Bitters are the best selling bitters I have handled in 20 years. You know why? Most diseases begin in disorders of stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels, blood and nerves. Electric Bitters tones up the stomach, regulates liver, kidneys and bowels, purifies the blood, strengthens the nerves, hence cures multitudes of maladies. It builds up the entire system Puts new life and vigor into any weak, sickly, rundown man or woman. Price 50 cents sold by F. Potts Green Druggist.

If ever superstition could find excuse, it would be when the expectant mother, calendar in hand, ponders the fortunate days and hopes that the baby's birthday may fall on a lucky time. It is natural to wish the best of fortune for those we love. Why not will fortune as well as wish it for the child?

The greatest fortune any mother can bestow on her child is a healthy body and a happy mind, and with this great fortune every mother may endow the child if she will. The child's stock of health is what the mother supplies. The weak and worried woman has a very slender stock of health to bestow on the baby.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes mothers healthy and happy. It does away with the misery of morning sickness. It strengthens the nerves, gives the body a feeling of buoyancy, makes the mind cheerful, gives vigor and elasticity to the organs peculiarly feminine, and baby's advent to the world is free from danger and painless.

"My first two babies were still-born, and I suffered every thing but death," writes Mrs. Euphemia Falconer, of Trent, Muskegon Co., Mich. "I was reduced to 109 pounds. When I was three months along with my third child I was taken with hemorrhage or flooding and came near having a miscarriage from female weakness. For two months I was under the care of our doctor, but was getting weaker all the time until I sent and got three bottles of 'Favorite Prescription.' I improved fast and continued to take your medicine until baby was born, and he is healthy and all right. My health has been good ever since. I now weigh 165 pounds."

There is no alcohol, whisky or other intoxicant in "Favorite Prescription," neither does it contain any opium or other narcotic.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets do not react on the system They are a perfect medicine.

A National Disgrace.

From the Independent.

It is now currently reported that in return for their distinguished services during the existing war in South Africa. Lord Roberts is to be given a dukedom, Lord Kitchener an earldom, and that General Buller is to be raised to the peerage. Military promotions, ribbons and orders are in steady process of distribution, save when the outflow is interrupted by Boer victories.

Less than two years ago we had a war of our own on our hands; not with a couple of little Africans republics, but with a great maritime nation having a navy reputed to rank fifth in the scale of power and generally regarded as superior to our own. Nevertheless, it was wiped out of existence in about a hundred days.

The Admiral Dewey we gave the greatest reward which could be bestowed, while still keeping him a naval officer, and recognized his captains by advancing them in their grades a few numbers each. The effect of this was to reduce the officers over whose heads they passed.

For their gallantry at the battle of Santiago the flag officers, captains and some of the subordinate officers were recommended for advancement, as they were even given new places on the Naval Register, which appeared in January, 1899. The question of their reward, however, became entangled with the unfortunate Sampson-Schley controversy, with which it had absolutely nothing to do. In vain Admiral Sampson has earnestly appealed for simple justice for the men who fought under his command.

THE Porto Rican bill has been passed at last, and that distracted country will have a chance to recover itself and to resume its trade, now that it has been relieved from the uncertainly of the situation. The bill is admittedly imperfect and would have been improved had not the Democrats showed plainly that they would take advantage of any debate to prolong the agony of the island by inaugurating a hopeless struggle. In view of this, all that was left for the Republicans to do, was to force the bill through as it stood and correct any errors later. The blame for these will rest on the Democrats.

Progress in the Postal Service.

Thirty-five years ago there was no free delivery, mail was not distributed on trains and boats, there were no fast mails, no letter carriers, no special deliveries, and no money order system. We had no department stores then, the mail order business was unknown, the improved machinery for turning out cheap periodicals, catalogues and pamphlets had not been introduced. The cheap daily and weekly paper, with a cent a pound postage on all second-class matter, had not been dreamed of.

His Bed Caught Fire.

John Rupert, aged 80 years, was seriously burned at his home in Pine township, Lycoming county, Monday. Rupert, who has long been an invalid, has occupied a small shanty adjoining his house as a bedroom. At midnight he was awakened and discovered that his house was on fire, and that a portion of the roof had already fallen in, setting fire to the bed on which he was sleeping. The old man crawled on his hands and knees to the door of the shanty, where he was found and pulled from the flames.

Aged Couple Divorced.

Judge Metzger, at Williamsport Thursday, granted a divorce to Abraham Swartz aged 84 years, from his wife, who is about 70 years old. The decree was issued upon the ground of desertion, is being alleged that the woman left her spouse about two years ago. The couple had been married over twenty years and Mr. Swartz is a great grandfather by a former marriage. This is the oldest couple that have ever been separated by a divorce in Lycoming county and probably in the state. After the proceedings were at an end, Swartz wept and asserted that he still loved the woman.

The Warren Mirror says that the largest load of lumber on record was drawn from the mill of Wheeler & Dusenbery at Economy, that county, to Endeavor, Forest county, a distance of eight miles, recently. William Hall, the driver, hauled 7,740 feet of plank. He made two trips, the second time hauling 7,240 feet making 14,980 feet for one day's work.

Fishing on Another's Land.

The trout fishing season opened in Pennsylvania April 15, but anglers could not lawfully throw their lines until Monday, on account of the 15th falling on Sunday. It is reported that the speckled beauties are more plentiful than last year. It is opportune to remind pscatorialists, however, that they are trespassers if they fish on anybody's land or in any stream that is the private property of any corporation, unless granted the privilege of doing so by the owners. Judge Albright, of Lehigh county, has recently ruled that a fisherman is guilty of trespass who enters a stream and fishes without the consent of the landowners, although he wades the stream and does not touch dry land; and the fact that the state has stocked the creek does not make it a public one.

will do for every woman what it did for the Minnesota mother who writes the above letter. Not to use it during pregnancy is a mistake to be paid for in pain and suffering. Mother's Friend equips the patient with a strong body and clear intellect, which in turn are imparted to the child. It relaxes the muscles and allows them to expand. It relieves morning sickness and nervousness. It puts all the organs concerned in perfect condition for the final hour, so that the actual labor is short and practically painless. Danger of rising or hard breasts is altogether avoided, and recovery is merely a matter of a few days.

ROYAL

The Absolutely Pure

is the baking powder of general use, its sale exceeding that of all other baking powders combined.

Royal Baking Powder has not its counterpart at home or abroad. Its qualities, which make the bread more healthful and the cake of finer appearance and flavor, are peculiar to itself and are not constituent in other leavening agents.

Great efforts are made to sell alum baking powders under the plea that they are so many cents a pound cheaper than Royal. The admission that they are cheaper made is an admission that they are inferior. But alum powders contain a corrosive poison and should not be used in food, no matter how cheap.

WHAT DOES THIS LACK.

Surely Bellefonte Readers Cannot Ask For Better Proof.

Can the Bellefonte reader ask for more convincing proof than testimony published everyday from represent ative citizens of Bellefonte. If so, what sort of proof can it be? Read this;

Mr. A. B. Steel of Half Moon Hill says: — "I have never had a bad back since I used Doan's Kidney, Pills in 1896 I procured them at that time from F. Potts Gren's drug store and used them, but I have never had any occasion to use them since. I was so bad with lumbago or soreness across my kidneys that I had to lay off work, I was hurt at a barn raising some years ago by a heavy timber swinging and striking me in the back. After that whenever I took cold it always affected my kidneys. This was the case for years but Doan's Kidney Pills finished all that suffering. I can speak as highly of this valuable preparation now as I did then."
